Accountability on the Quad(August 31)—In 1991 Congressman C. Thomas McMillen, introduced a bill to the House of Representative that sought to reform college athletics. Now, 20 years later he still calling for the same reforms that have remained unresolved. It has been debated and pondered as to who, if anybody, is ultimately accountable for collegiate athletics. In McMillen's opinion, the buck stops with the trustees. Read More
